Naomi's Testimonial:

“Going to study for a semester during the three year duration of my course, gave me a wider perspective of both life abroad and living independently on my own in a large city like London, as well as getting a fresh new way of teaching methods and different modules in my course of study, from my home university.

I managed to make friends from diverse backgrounds from all over the world, since London is a multi cultural city. This enabled me to understand different cultures, as well as different perspectives on many aspects in life and education. Moreover, from the education aspect, I acquired new skills in learning and how to approach new material from getting ideas on how to tackle these from both lecturers as well as students.

My learning experience was very enriching, since the amount of things I have learnt by living on my own, studying abroad and so much more, gave me the chance and experience to challenge everything I knew.”
